How to Evaluate Quality Care

You can check the quality of care in licensed facilities by reviewing public data from state agencies. For RCFEs, ARFs, and Adult Day Programs, visit the California Department of Social Services (CDSS) Care Facility Search website to view inspection reports, complaints, and citations. For Skilled Nursing Facilities (SNFs) and Intermediate Care Facilities (ICFs), use the California Department of Public Health's (CDPH) Cal Health Find site, which includes state survey results, federal 5-star ratings, staffing levels, and fines. Look for patterns like repeated violations, serious complaints, or failure to fix problems. While CDPH provides star ratings for SNFs, CDSS does not, so it's important to read the reports carefully. Some facilities, such as those overseen by the Golden Gate Regional Center, are also monitored by that agency. Reviewing this information helps families make informed decisions and identify any red flags.
